

Jeff Dunn

Jazz Photographer

Website: jeffdunn.com

Email: jeff@jeffdunn.com

Year-round photographer for the Detroit Jazz Festival Foundation
Current member of the Michigan Jazz Festival Board of Directors
Retired Computer Programmer and Web Developer at Wayne State University

If you know me, you know I am passionate about jazz! My wife, Ellen, and I are staunch supporters of the Detroit jazz scene. I've combined that passion with my interest in photography and my web development skills to support many jazz artists around the country. They include some of the top names in jazz, including bassist Martin Wind, pianist Ted Rosenthal, pianist Tad Weed, bassist Paul Keller, drummer RJ Spangler, multi-instrumentalist Scott Robinson's ScienSonic Laboratories...and many more.

During the summer of 2018, I was hired by the Detroit Jazz Festival Foundation to be their year-round photographer, covering local jam sessions, recording studio shoots, outreach events in area schools and other Detroit Jazz Festival events. During the 2020 and 2021 seasons, I was the primary photographer for the signature Detroit Jazz Festival event. Several of my photos for the Detroit Jazz Festival have been published in newspapers, such as the Detroit Free Press and Oakland Press...as well as national jazz publications (Downbeat, Jazz Times and more). I continue to regularly photograph the thriving and exciting Detroit jazz scene. My jazz photo portfolio can be found by visiting https://jeffdunn.com/portfolio

In November 2019 and after 46 ½ years, I retired from my web developer position at Wayne State University in Detroit, Michigan.

In November 2021, I was elected to the Michigan Jazz Festival Board of Directors.